

Choose more than (just) your desktop background.

When you install Linux, you get more than a fast, secure, and reliable computer operating system. You get the freedom to choose how it helps you achieve your goals. From animation to administration to pro audio to just surfing the web, you will be more in control of your computer. You'll be able to customise it without using hacks to fight against your OS.

Because GNU/Linux is based on libre software and the open source community, the development process doesn't happen behind closed doors, nor is the software running on your computer a mysterious black box. You won't be walled into a computing environment or held down by a licence agreement. For the inquisitive and industrious, possibilities are endless.

The best thing the GNU operating system provides its users is freedom in the way they compute. The rest just comes gratis.

